We learned so many neat things about the women that inspired our flights today. We hope you enjoy learning more about them.

Shari Lewis- puppeteer & author She is known for her famous pupper, Lamb Chop. She was in Girl Scouts in New York City and served on the board of directors of Girl Scouts USA. Lewis published over 100 children's books with her version of "Cinderella" being a best seller.

Carrie Fisher-actress & author She is known for her indelible portrayal of Princess Leia in the "Star Wars" film franchise. She has written several books with her fiction novel, "Postcards from the Edge" being her most popular. Carrie Fisher was a girl scout in Burbank, California.

Shirley Temple Black- actress & diplomat Finding stardom at the age 3 in movies, she danced and acted most of her childhood. In adulthood, she went onto work in politics eventually being appointed the US Ambassador to Ghana and then Czechoslovakia. She has written several books including "Child Star: An autobiography." Her girl scout troop was in California.

Dorothy Hamill: Winning gold at Innsbruck in 1976 isn't the only thing she has done! She worked as a TV commentator, traveled in several ice shows, and is a proud supporter of the Girl Scouts. She is a Gold Award recipient for the Girl Scouts. She has written two books, her best seller being, "A Skating Life: My Story."

Mary Tyler Moore- actress, producer & activist: Starting out in commercials, she got her break on the Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet. After her work on The Dick Van Dyke Show, she pitched and booked The Mary Tyler Moore Show which she wrote and produced with her husband. It was the first show of her time to feature a single, independent woman as the lead. Mary Tyler Moore authored several books including best seller, "Growing Up Again." Her troop was in Brooklyn Heights, New York, New York.

Queen Elizabeth- queen of England First, she wasn't a Girl Scout, she was a Girl Guide, Europe's version of the Girl Scouts. She was a fan and supporter of both. Elizabeth was the longest reigning British monarch preserving the monarchy for over 70 years. While the topic of well over a 100 books, she authored three. Her first was "A Queen Speaks to Her People".

Sally Ride-astronaut & physicist Loving science and adventure, Sally was the first American woman, as well as the youngest American to go to space. She was also the director of the California Space Institute at the University of California in San Diego. She was also a physics professor there. She wrote over a dozen books including "To Space and Back". She was a girl scout in LA, and helped co-found Camp CEO, a Girl Scouts mentorship program.

Michelle Obama-author, lawyer, and first lady of the US Many know Michelle for being the first lady, but outside of all that, she has done so many things. She was a lawyer, worked as the assistant to Chicago's mayor, and served as the associate dean of student services at the University of Chicago. She has authored over a dozen books with her most popular, "Becoming". She has also won two Emmys for Best Audiobook, Narration, and Storytelling Recording. Her troop was in Chicago.
